

Anat Feldman list of publication:

A. Ph.D. Dissertation

Title: Shas party: a review of factors contributing to its growth

Date: 2002

Pages: 320

language: Hebrew

University: Bar-Ilan, Department of Political Science

Advisor: Prof. Eliezer Don-Yehiya

B. Articles in Refereed Journals

Published

1. Feldman, A. (2001). The struggle for the leadership of the revisionist movement, Zeev Jabotinsky vs. Meir Grossman 1925-1933. Contemporary Judaism, 14, 99-125. (Hebrew)
2. Feldman, A. (2007). Ethnicity, politics and education: The first decade of Ha'chinuch Ha'atzmai 1953-1963. Dor Le'dor, 31, 117-150 (Hebrew)
3. Feldman, A. (2007). Women professionalization: The Shas movement towards a new social political worldview. Politika, 16, 93-115. (Hebrew)
4. Feldman, A. (2009). Constructing charisma of non-establishment religious leadership in contemporary Israel: The case of the Roentgen. Social Issues in Israel, 7, 85-119. (Hebrew)
5. Feldman, A. (2013). The establishment of the political education network in the State of Israel: Maayan Hachinuch Hatorani. Israel Affairs, 19(3), 526-541.
6. Feldman, A. (2012). New faith communities: The case of the "community of miracle seekers." Politika, 21, 180-210. (Hebrew)
7. Feldman, A. (2012). Mysticism, charisma and religious leadership. Religion and the Social Order, 22, 85-97.
8. Feldman, A. (2012). Carnival by night: A new practice of modern tikun rituals. Democratic Culture, 13, 81-120.
9. Feldman, A. (2013). Ethnic religion politics in Israel: The case of the Shas party. Religion and the Social Order, 23, 193-210.
10. Feldman, A. (2015). In the realms of ethnicity, religion and emigration: New communities of memory in Israel. Review of Religious Research, 57, 171-189.
11. Feldman, A. (2017). The role of Haredi women leaders according to Shas party. Research of the Haredi Society, 4, 81-103. (Hebrew)

12. Feldman, A. (2017). The determination of educational policy: Shas, politics, and religion. Israel Studies Review, 32, 89-109.
13. Feldman, A. (2020). The shaping of a national educational policy through coalition agreements: How did the Shas Party establish an education network? Social Issues in Israel, 29(6): 165-191. (Hebrew)
14. Feldman, A. (2020). Education and Employment among Ultra-Orthodox Women in Israel: Modernity and Conservatism—The Case of the Shas Party, Contemporary Jewry. 39(3):451-472.
15. Feldman, A. (2020). Academic Education and Religion: A Comparison of Religious Motifs among Students in a Secular Academic College in Israel, Religion and Education.
16. Feldman, A., Barak, D. (2021) Religious and spiritual trends among female students of different ethnic origins and fields of study at a secular academic college in Israel, Religions

C. Articles or Chapters in Scientific Books
(which are not Conference Proceedings)
Published

1. Feldman, A. (2005). The “Shas” movement as a social-cultural phenomenon. In E. Don-Yehiya (Ed.), Between tradition and innovation: Studies in Judaism, zionism and the State of Israel (pp. 447-465). Ramat-Gan, Israel: Bar-Ilan University Press. (Hebrew) A
2. Feldman, A. (2005). The Shas woman: Social political boundaries. In T. Cohen & S. Regev (Eds.), Women in the East, women from the East: the story of the Oriental Jewish woman (pp. 295-314). Ramat-Gan, Israel: Bar-Ilan University Press (Hebrew). A
3. Feldman, A. (2006). The rise of the Shas Movement: Goals and activities. In A. Ravitsky (Ed.), Shas: Cultural and ideological perspectives (pp. 405-442). Tel-Aviv, Israel: Am Oved and Yitzhak Rabin Center (Hebrew). B
4. Feldman, A. (2020). New sites for rituals: Miracle seekers, burial sites, and extra-institutional religious leaders – Israel's popular culture. In D. Sobolev & E. Nosenko-Stein (Eds.), Contemporary Israel: Languages, Society, Culture. (pp. 116-154). Moscow, Russia: Institute of Oriental Studies, Russian Academy of Sciences. Q2