5. Scientific Areas of Specialization

Ancient Mediterranean civilizations and their relation to the sea; ships and port cities in the Greco-Roman era; the relation of Jews and the Land of Israel to the sea; museums and their heritage

6. Academic Profile

Research work on Jews and their relation to the sea in Greco-Roman times; the maritime cities of the Land of Israel, material heritage and their inter cultural role, based on literary and archaeological sources. Examples: Jaffa and Akko (Acre). Ships, storms and seafaring in the ancient Mediterranean. Another field of interest, the museum and its heritage, past and present. This includes a research project, combining AI (Artificial Intelligence), archaeology and museum studies. The research was carried out at the Hecht Museum, University of Haifa, as part of international projects dealing with implementing new technologies in cultural heritage. Future research will deal with issues relating the heritage of maritime cities and its conservation.
